Stages	Walk to the Fens	At the Fens	After the Fens
Thinking	• "I hope I remember how to get to the visitor's center since the last time I was there." • "I wonder what kind of information we're going to be given at the visitor's center." • "I wish there was a sign system letting me know how close or far away I am from the Fens."	• "Hm. What are some easy problems that I can already start thinking about from what I can see?" • "I better listen to all that the guide is saying, since I might be able to derive a project idea from it." • "There are quite a few geese around here."	• "I should probably start researching the Emerald Necklace to find out more about the various parks in it's network." • "I need to email my group and coordinate a time for us to sit and observe an area in the Emerald Necklace." • "Alright. Now to get to my next class of the day."
Feeling	• Kind of nervous that I might get lost while trying to find the visitor's center • Excited to learn more about the Emerald Necklace at the visitor's center	• Interested in the Fens and the surrounding area and what it offers and can eventually offer people as a space • A little tired from having to walk around all morning	• A bit warm since the sun has started to come out • Thoughtful about next steps regarding the project • Kind of anxious about the class and the potential of many project ideas
Seeing	• City life (People walking, automobiles, buildings, construction, trains, birds, etc.) • Trees, both in the city and closer to the Emerald Necklace visitor's center	• Nature (Trees, overgrown foliage, geese, etc.) • People walking through the Fens • People utilizing the sports facilities/fields • Still some aspects of city life (cars driving by, police sirens in the background)	• Similar to the walk into the Fens • City life, trees, geese, etc.
